RESEARCH

War Memory and Nationalism: A Conjoint Experiment June 2023 - Present
Supervised by Dr. Lu Zhang

· Based on a review of work by Anderson, Billig, Guibernau and others' work, proposed the following novel research question: How does collective war memory and social media framing influence nationalist sentiment in contemporary China?
· Designed a survey experiment using image-based conjoint analysis to address potential measurement biases highlighted in previous studies.

Early Political Communication Discourse Analysis of the CCP February 2023 - April 2023
Supervised by Dr. Zijie Shao

· Developed a Python program for text encoding, addressing Excel's lag issues with large datasets. It calculates coder reliability using indices such as Holsti and Scott's Pi, facilitating coding work.
· Gathered and coded 1921-1949 documents from the Historical Documents on the Organization of the Communist Party of China (CCP) to create a primary-source database on early communications by the party.

Long-term Strategy Research on Climate and Energy April 2022 - October 2022
Supervised by Dr. Meian Chen

· Compiled energy data and policies from 23 provinces (2008-present) and contributed to the Closing the Emissions Gap through Subnational Climate Actions in China report and the China Carbon Neutrality Action database.
· Tracked news on clean energy data and the progress made in phasing out coal in several influential countries. Contributed to the Global Coal Phase-Out Progress Tracking Report.

INTERNSHIPS
